Deacon Eric's mind)

CHRISTIANITY JUST "KEEPS ON TICKING"

With Timex watch sales dwindling a little more than 60 years ago, the company hit upon a marketing plan that struck gold for the company. (You might even say it was timely.) Timex lived in the low-cost area of the watch market, so the plan was to show the durability of Timex watches.

For example, Timexes were tested against paint mixers, jackhammers, washing machines, dishwashers, water skiers, and even an 87-foot dive off of the La Quebrada Cliffs in Acapulco, Mexico. All of these tests were then followed by former newscaster John Cameron Swayze saying: "Timex watches take a licking and keep on ticking." This long-running campaign convinced buyers that Timex watches could be cheap and durable.

So what sparks this nostalgic Timex reflection? Actually this relevant quote popped up on my flip-calendar from our old buddy G. K. Chesterton: "Christianity has died many times and risen again; for it had a God who knew the way out of the grave." So, slightly modified we have: "Christianity has taken a licking, but also keeps on ticking."

The Church has faced its own versions of Timex-like durability tests of paint mixers and jackhammers. For 300 years, Christians were persecuted all around the Mediterranean Sea. Every bishop and pope had a target on his back, as did each faithful Christian. Yet the Church survived—it took a licking, but kept on ticking.

The Great Schism occurred in 1054 resulting in the Roman Catholic Church and the Eastern Orthodox Church. The reasons were partly political, partly doctrinal, and partly linguistic—for starters. The split still exists today, although popes have made overtures to the Orthodox Churches in recent decades. The point is that we proved durable despite the breakup, and we kept on ticking.

The next crisis was the Protestant Reformation almost 500 years later in 1517. The Church took a big hit there, as its clerical power and unclear doctrine came under scrutiny. The Church eventually responded to Martin Luther through the Council of Trent with a clarification of church doctrine and a refutation of some key Lutheran claims. Though Christianity was split by the Reformation, Catholicism regained its honor and standing through Trent. It took another licking, but kept on ticking.

Now, another 500 years later, all of Christianity is being attacked by the secular world. There was another church shooting just last week. Vandalism against Catholic Churches and sacramentals has been ongoing for a few years now, and it could get worse after the Supreme Court releases its official ruling that could overturn Roe v Wade.

Our Church isn't perfect, but God always gives us what we need in times of crisis. For example, almost half of the 37 Church Doctors were active in the two centuries adjacent to the end of Roman persecution and the Reformation. He always gives us the tools to withstand our tests. He will again, and we will "keep on ticking."

The Vocation Story of Deacon Marvin Robertson

THE CALL

One morning in the mid 1980's, I challenged the Holy Spirit to give me guidance on where He was leading me. Almost immediately, I received a call from an assistant county clerk, requesting that I "sub" for her Protestant pastor on a Sunday when he was on leave of absence. I at first declined, stating that I was not a minister, that I was a Catholic. She was insistent, stating that her church would still like me to fill in for their minister. I was about to firmly refuse, but then recalled my request to the Holy Spirit a few minutes earlier. Several weeks later, I delivered my very first sermon, preaching on the sacredness of marriage and family at the Lowe Road Methodist Church. That gave me a sense that the Holy Spirit was calling me to preach. Weeks later, I saw a flyer on our parish bulletin board which invited anyone interested in the permanent diaconate to call the diocese. I received materials from our Office of Permanent Deacons. Our pastor, Fr. Hankerd, was very supportive of my discerning a call to the diaconate. After application and interviews, I was accepted for diaconal studies which began in 1987. Daughters Monica and Rachel were old enough to be unsupervised when wife Tita and I went to Saturday classes.

On June 30, 1990, the Feast of the Early Roman Martyrs, Bishop Povish ordained our class. He preached a very inspiring homily, urging the new deacons to accept Mother Teresa and Pope John II as role models. I became the first permanent deacon from our St. Joseph parish. Monsignor Lunsford was very helpful and supportive as I began diaconal ministry.

THE MINISTRY

Pope John Paul II's 1987 address to permanent deacons reminded us of our three areas of ministry: the ministry of the word, the ministry of the altar, and the ministry of charity.

In my ministry of the word, I preached at weekend Masses monthly and presided at funeral vigils as well as Communion Services at Hazel Findlay, Grace Haven, and the county jail. I once preached a retreat for judges, and several years ago I was on a panel to present effective preaching tips to our diocesan deacons.

In ministry of the altar, I assisted at Mass and presided at marriages, infant baptisms, Stations of the Cross, and Benedictions. I also assisted as deacon for our bishop when he presided at the Red Mass for the Catholic Lawyers Guild.

In my ministry of charity, I did pastoral counseling, took the Eucharist to hospitalized and homebound, delivered "Meals on Wheels", served as spiritual advisor for our St. Vincent DePaul Society, and served as chaplain to Thomas More Society at Cooley Law School.

A very joyful ministry for me was baptizing our babies. Similar to my baptismal ministry in white vestments, my favorite secular ministry as a black-robed judge was finalizing infant adoptions.

TRANSITIONS

The call to, and practice of, ordained diaconal ministry effected an important change in me. Earlier, my life-motto was something like "Watch out for number one." The diaconate changed my outlook to adopt the adage of "Service above self." In spite of my unworthiness, I came to experience the gifts and fruits of the Holy Spirit as I came to see Jesus in those I served in His Name.

Taking my cue from Pope Benedict, who retired due to age and health, I retired several years ago. I'm happy that the ministry has continued to grow and flourish with my deacon brothers, Jerry and Eric. As I live out the final chapter of my life, I pray that the Eternal Judge will greet me thus on that final day: "Well done, good and faithful servant."
