SHOUT-OUTS AND REFLECTIONS

"Make us know the shortness of our life, that we may gain wisdom of heart." Psalm 90

The shortness of life is what drew about 25 people to St. Jude's last weekend—specifically the shortness of life of a very special person or persons in their lives. They were there for the Grieving with Great Hope grief support workshop put on by a compassionate group here at St. Joe's known as Path of Divine Hope Grief Ministry. It is a much-needed and perhaps underutilized parish ministry. I'd like to give them a shout-out for all the under-the-radar work they do for the parish.

As you can tell by the title of the workshop, the emphasis was on hope, which is right in my wheelhouse. As such, I focused in my opening night talk on the hope that Catholics have through Baptism, that life through Jesus also means we share in his death and resurrection. From there, the workshop leaders John and Sandy O'Shaughnessy used their own personal-loss stories to kick off the workshop, which gave insight to the attendees. John and Sandy helped the group not only differentiate between grief and mourning, but gave them tools with which to work through mourning. The goal was to provide comfort and hope—healing is still down the road.

The weekend workshop made me a bit melancholy as I reflected on my father on Father's Day. He will be gone 30 years come November. I thought about his death and how it came at a down period in my life. Then I reflected on his life and one of my favorite parts of it—when he would ask my younger brother and me during dinner, "Anybody feel like a ballgame, tonight?" An hour later, we would be in the bleachers at Tiger Stadium in Detroit.

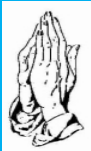

Three of my kids are out of state, a fourth was tending to his sick wife and the youngest had to work a double-shift, so when my wife asked what I wanted to do on Father's Day I said "I feel like a ball game." Off to see the Lansing Lugnuts we went. It turns out the Lugnuts were also spectators and not in the game at all, losing 12-0. But there were two empty seats next to my wife and me all game—one for my Dad and one for my brother in Washington, D.C., who texted me later that day saying he too spent the day in the ballpark there. "We must have both been thinking about Dad," he said. "I think you're right," I replied.

I'd like to give a second shout out before we go to brother Deacon Pat McDonald, who celebrated his 50th anniversary as a deacon last week. Research couldn't dig up the name of anyone else across the country who has reached 50 years in the diaconate, considering it only went into effect after Vatican II in 1970. Brother Pat just turned 85 and is still serving (appropriately enough) St. Pat's Parish in Brighton. May the Lord continue to bless him in his service.

Renovation Reflections - A Journey

Attending Mass outside the dedicated worship space of a Catholic Church can seem odd.

As a deacon, I've been called on to assist at Mass at a number of places outside of a church building. Among some of the more notable secular places were the Capital One Arena in Washington D.C. while there for a youth Mass and March for Life, the Lansing Center for a number of conferences, a large gymnasium at the University of Steubenville during a conference, a golf resort near Bay City during the deacon convocation, Boyne Mountain Resort for Marian conferences, a chapel at the home of consecrated women, and our own Columbian Hall for our parish's Senior Appreciation Luncheon. I have attended Masses outside for Faith Fest and Memorial Day and even in a church basement. Yet, Mass, at its heart, is always the same.

Participating at Mass in the same place each week is comfortable and familiar. Mass at the Wilson Center may seem very odd. No public space will ever seem Catholic. And habits will be interrupted: your favorite parking space may be further away from where you will sit, your favorite pew won't be there (though it might be in someone's basement or barn), and where to leave a coat, hat, or umbrella will be different.

It may not even seem like Mass at first, and there will likely be a few weeks of working out the details before liturgy goes smoothly. However, the words of the liturgy will be the same. Most of our postures will be the same—the sign of the Cross, sitting, standing, bowing, and processing. We will sing. We will pray. We will give the same responses we gave today. And we will be Christ's Body, animated by the Gift of Christ's Body. Will there be Holy Water? I don't know. Standing instead of kneeling may seem odd. We will have to get used to bowing to the altar, since at the Wilson Center there is no tabernacle, thus Christ the King is not there to reverence with a genuflection.

But, the essential elements of Mass will be there, across the street. Christ will still be present in the four ways He always is: in His Word—sacred scripture, in His Flesh—the Eucharist, in the Priest—in persona Christi (in the person of Christ), and in us—the people—the Body of Christ. I think of this temporary relocation as a journey toward a renovated worship space, which passes through some foreign territory along the way. Let's take this journey together.

Deacon Jerry

Renovation Prayer

St. Joseph, patron of craftsmen, through your intercession may the Holy Spirit guide all who work to renovate our worship space. May God provide them the grace to safely transform our historic faith home into a lasting, beautiful, and welcoming place of worship. St. Joseph, patron of families and our parish, be with us as we undertake this journey together. Amen

In Appreciation of 10 years as St. Joseph's Pastor

In June 2012, St. Joseph Parish welcomed a new Pastor! Fr. Mike Williams has been our spiritual shepherd for the last 10 years! We thank him for caring and praying for us every day. We thank him for bringing us the sacraments. We thank him for his sacrifices for us. The best way to show our appreciation is to offer prayer that God may continue to bless him as he continues to work for our salvation.

Some ideas:

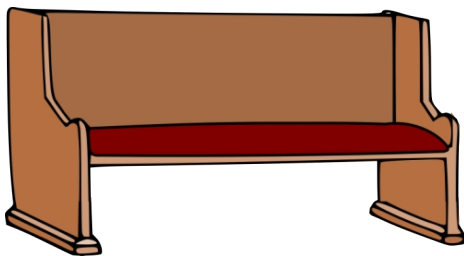

- Offer a spiritual bouquet of a rosary, chaplet of Divine Mercy, holy hour of Eucharistic adoration, or any other prayer you choose to offer. Let Fr. Mike know that you will be praying for his intentions.
- Take the time to write a note expressing your gratitude and appreciation. Help your children to also write a note.
- Send a gift card for pizza, subs, and other tasty treats.
- Make a delivery of cookies or a meal

Fr. Mike, may God bless you and give you grace and strength as you continue to work for Him and His people.

Muscles Needed!
On Sunday, June 26, at 2:00 p.m.

We need able bodied youths and adults to help us move our furnishings out of the worship space and of the church. Some items will be moved to the new Day Chapel (former Youth Room) and some will be moved into storage. Please help us as we “abandon” our space for the construction contractor.

FREE Church Pews—One Day Only

Would you like one of our old church pews? They will be available on a first-come, first-served basis on Sunday, June 26, from 2:00 until 3:00. No cost to you, but you need to unfasten and move them yourself.
