WE ARE ALL EVANGELIZERS

(and whatever else is on Deacon Eric's mind)

Sunday, Funday 2.0

(Since I am on vacation this week, primarily to baptize my granddaughter and celebrate my daughter's 40th birthday in Tennessee, I thought I would leave my readers with some light-hearted fare. If I'm having fun, why shouldn't everyone else, right? Hence we have "Sunday, Funday 2.0." So grin, groan or guffaw at a couple of Catholic-oriented jokes I'm leaving back in mid-Michigan. The first one is a Golden Oldie {or Moldy Oldie if you don't like it.})

This is a story about a pastor (probably not Fr. Mike) and a deacon (probably not me) who decided to help the less fortunate one summer by repairing roofs.

The deacon was on a ladder nailing shingles on. Each time he needed a nail, he reached in his pouch and pulled one out. He would look at it and either toss it over his shoulder or nail it to the roof.

This puzzled the pastor observing from the ground. (He was doing a wonderful job of supervising his deacon, by the way.) Finally he asked his deacon "Why are you throwing some of the nails away?"

The deacon responded that if he pulled out a nail that was pointing at him he would toss it, but if it was pointing toward the roof he would nail it to the roof.

The pastor (again, probably not Fr. Mike) was frustrated at the deacon's answer and said "Don't you understand how to do this? Don't throw away those nails. The ones pointed at you are for the other side of the roof."

I can tell you want one more sparkling gem, so here's one to cool you off.

A deacon (definitely not me) decided to try ice fishing one winter and started drilling a hole in the ice. He looked inside it but didn't see any fish. "Then he heard a voice from above say "There's no fish in there."

So he moved about 20 yards away and drilled another hole, only again to here "There's no fish in there." Getting frustrated, he moved another 20 yards away and drilled a third hole and again he heard that voice saying "I told you, there are no fish there."

Totally perplexed, the frustrated deacon and would-be ice fisherman looked up and said "Is that you Lord?"

"No, you slow learner," the voice replied "I'm the skating rink manager."

(I know you're all thinking, "don't quit your day job," but I hope I got a grin or two out of you nonetheless. Have a wonderful Fourth of July week and I'll see you soon.)
