PRAYER FOR VOCATIONS

God our Father,
You made each of us to use our gifts in the Body of Christ.
We ask that You inspire young people whom you call to priesthood and consecrated life
to courageously follow Your will.
Send workers into Your great harvest
so that the Gospel is preached,
the poor are served with love,
the suffering are comforted,
and Your people are strengthened by the sacraments.

We ask this through Christ our Lord.
Amen

The Contemplative's Buffet

This Sunday's readings are so abundant with riches, that it's hard to pull one idea from the rest to focus on, so we won't. These readings allow us to isolate a single wonderful thought or consume a little bit of each. It's similar to grazing at a five-star restaurant's Christmas party -- we can go all in on the prime rib or shrimp, or sample a bit of all the tasty delights. Let's call the set of readings the "contemplative buffet." We can grab a single thought from a reading and reflect on it and how it affects our lives. Or we can spend some time with each.

In our first reading from Isaiah, the Lord tells us that we have to trust his actions even when we can't understand why something happens in our life because we will never be able to think like him:

"my thoughts are not your thoughts,
says the Lord.

As high as the heavens are above the earth,
so high are my ways above your ways and my thoughts above your thoughts."

In our responsorial hymn the refrain was "The Lord is near to all who call upon him."

From St Paul's letter to the Philippians we get a glimpse into his inner struggle:

"I long to depart this life and be with Christ...
Yet that I may remain in the flesh is better for your benefit."

Then among the many available quotes in the gospel from Matthew in today's gospel I offer the penultimate (I only recently learned that word's meaning) line:

"Are you envious because I am generous?"

I propose that we take at least one of those quotations and take some time today or early this week and just ponder what they might mean in our lives. Or perhaps we can pray for wisdom into Scripture so that we might better understand the reading(s) as a whole.

For example, scholars believe the section of Isaiah from which the first quote is taken, was written while the Israelites were in Babylonian captivity. Many of them most certainly questioned God's call to them as his Chosen People. Perhaps we are in a season of our lives when we feel a bit captive.

As we look at this mental and spiritual exercise, we need not limit ourselves to my suggestions. If there's another word or phrase that catches us, let's go for it. On that five-star buffet there might be a great salad or a vegetarian lasagna that some of us may prefer over prime rib or shrimp. The idea is to find something in the readings that really speaks to us as individuals. The key is setting up a quiet time to do this and it may be difficult for some of us, especially when small children are involved.

So, let's grab a knife and fork and chow down at the "contemplative's buffet."

THE SEARCH

Do you wonder why happiness is fleeting?

The things we expect to fulfill us don't... Why is life this way? Why are we here? Why do we exist? Why are we filled with longing?

Even if you have a good grasp on the answers to these questions, The Search will help you deepen it. If you know someone who is grappling with these questions, bring them along, this is a great series to share with them.

The Search features people from all walks of life, and their search for meaning.
