WE ARE ALL EVANGELIZERS

(and whatever else is on Deacon Eric's mind)

WHAT TIME IS IT?

"Time will come today."
"Time waits for no one."
"Does anyone really know what time it is?"
"Parsley, sage rosemary and thyme" -- (well thyme sounds the same, right?)

Those song titles just scratch the surface of the hundreds of songs dealing in one way or another with time because our world is driven by some element of time. We have to be at work at a certain time. We have to catch the bus, the train or the airplane at a specific time and so on.

Most of us have immediate access to the time on a given day because we wear watches or carry cell phones. If someone in a crowd says "What time is it?," he or she will get an immediate answer. But there were no cell phones, wristwatches or clocks on the wall in Jesus' time. Yet in today's gospel, John the Evangelist notes that it was four o'clock in the afternoon. Why did he note the time?

Most references to time in the bible are general as in the evening or at night. Often we are told of something happening in the first watch or second watch, which are time periods between sunset and sunrise. Watchmen would (surprise, surprise) watch for danger in the overnight hours for a set amount of time. Thus we are often given a "ballpark" time, but rarely a specific hour.

Bible scholars differ on exactly what John's purpose was in naming the precise hour of day, but the most logical one is that it is the time when his life changed forever. That was quite literally his "Come to Jesus" moment. Jesus says "Come and you will see." John was probably the unnamed disciple with Andrew when Jesus issued his invitation. In reflecting on Jesus' ministry while writing his gospel, John quite likely identified that moment as the time when his life changed in a way he never imagined.

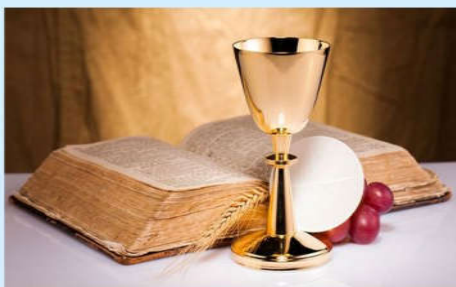

Andrew, we are told today, immediately brought his brother Simon Peter to Jesus. The three of them then spent several hours with the Lord. And knowing this, we can better understand why, as we will hear in next Sunday's gospel, these fishermen so quickly abandoned their nets when Jesus later approached them and said "Come after me and I will make you fishers of men." They had experienced Jesus and desired to be a part of his ministry.

So I propose today that we all take some time to reflect on our lives and identify the four-o'clock-in-the-afternoon moments in our lives. Perhaps for some, it will be one powerful moment, when we experienced our own version of Mary's Fiat -- her "Yes to the Lord." For others it will be times when we took steps in Jesus' direction. Then may we all thank God for four o'clock.
