Eucharistic Adoration

“Prepare the way of the Lord”

Advent offers us a great opportunity to prepare our hearts and souls for Christmas. A perfect way to prepare ourselves is by spending time with Him Who is, was, and is to come by attending Eucharistic Adoration.

This can be as simple as stopping in for some quiet time with our Lord present to us in the Holy Eucharist in the tabernacle. Or, consider joining many others during the beautiful Advent Candle-light Holy Hour on December 19, at 6:00 p.m. here at St. Joseph Church.

WE ARE ALL EVANGELIZERS

(AND WHATEVER ELSE IS ON DEACON ERIC'S MIND)

Don't Judge a Book by It's Cover

Imagine you are camping Up North, in a nice quiet, secluded spot with no one else around –just you and the family, getting away from work and school. Everyone is just relaxing while singing songs around the campfire when all of a sudden someone happens upon your family – a bit of an odd-looking fellow.

To say he looks disheveled would be putting it mildly, because you can see he looks more than unkempt, and way beyond untidy, but you can't think of any word at the moment that means "more than disheveled." He doesn't have a weapon and he issues no threats, but you have trouble getting past his looks. His hair is long and unruly. He is young, yet he has a beard the length of an old man.

He's wearing camel hair clothing and a leather belt. It appeared he has insects stuck on his hands and his clothes, as if he had just dined on honey and locusts, but had yet to find a restroom in which to tidy up. Nonetheless, he delivers a message with confidence – in a manner that belied his appearance, saying: "Repent for the kingdom of heaven is at hand."

This message is the same today as it was two thousand years ago, when John the Baptist, (or Crazy John for fans of "The Chosen" TV series) came out of the desert to announce that the Lord and Savior Jesus Christ was soon to follow him and as such we must "make straight his paths." We don't need to have "The Baptizer" warn us in person to get our act together spiritually, because we do not know the time of Jesus Second Coming.

Now, none of us likes to be told we "have to do this or have to do that." We didn't like it when we were kids and we most certainly don't care for it as adults. And we definitely don't want to be scolded. But each year during Advent we are reminded by the Church through our Sunday Gospels that the Lord has expectations of us to turn away from sin – remember to repent means to not only confess our sins, but to turn away from those sins and toward God.

If you're looking for a new way to grow spiritually this Advent, try this: pick up a catechism and read through the chapter on the ten commandments. I would be surprised if anyone did that and did not discover all that the Church describes as sins. The Fourth Commandment to honor your father and mother, for example, goes much deeper than respecting two people. The Fifth Commandment has 15 pages of what constitutes sin under the heading of Thou Shalt Not Kill.

Reading through the Catholic Catechism chapter on the commandments is very likely to open our eyes. Maybe we'll find a need to repent where we didn't see it before and maybe we'll find a greater urgency to "be prepared" through the sacrament of Reconciliation.
